Follow up on BC Supreme Court decision

ANiC chancellor Cheryl Chang has written to the four Vancouver-area churches involved in the recent court proceeding reporting on a meeting held November 30 with the leaders of the four churches and their legal counsel. She says that while there are clear grounds for appeal, no decision has been made. “There were views expressed on both sides of the equation and everyone agreed to pray about it and try to discern what God is calling us to do. Unfortunately, this decision has come at the beginning of the busiest month in our church calendars, making it very difficult to properly consult with all the congregations on the long-term implications of such a major decision. The Trustees agreed to consult as widely as possible over the following 2 weeks and they will meet again on December 14 to discuss the matter further and, ideally, make some decision as to whether or not to file an appeal before the end of the expiry of the 30 day time limit... It is important to remember that should we choose to file an appeal, we can later discontinue that appeal, but if we do not file within the 30 day time limit, our decision will be final... I am recommending that we file an appeal... to give the congregations more time to... seek a consensus so that we [can] act in unity...”

Negotiation with the Diocese of Niagara reaches interim agreement

The Anglican Essentials blog reports that three ANiC parishes in the Golden Triangle of Ontario – St George’s (Lowville), Good Shepherd (St Catharines) and St Hilda’s (Oakville) – have achieved a new sharing arrangement with the Diocese of Niagara. Under the new agreement, which will be in place until ownership of the properties is finally determined, the Diocese will get exclusive use of St George’s facility in Lowville and the two ANiC congregations will have exclusive use of the facilities for Good Shepherd and St Hilda’s.

Assessment weekend discerns God’s leading in pursuing ordained ministry

Over the weekend of November 27-29, 14 ordination candidates and 14 assessors met together, supported and encouraged by Bishops Don and Trevor. This marked the first time ANiC’s systematic discernment process – for those seeking to know if God is calling them into ordained ministry – has come into effect.

Bishop Trevor reports that it was an inspiring weekend listening to the testimonies of the candidates and the way in which they had been called into ministries. The task of the assessors – comprised of male and female clergy, lay leaders, theologians, business people and educators – was enormous, namely to recommend to the bishops ways in which the candidates’ ministries might be guided and enriched in the coming years.

Eight candidates were affirmed and recommended with no reservation to continue on the pathway of ordination to the priesthood or the diaconate. Five were asked to return at various intervals for clarification of the call to ordination.

Bishop Trevor concludes, “ANiC is incredibly blessed to have 14 such gifted and dedicated servants of the Lord. Our future looks very encouraging and very bright!”

Please continue to pray for the ACNA meetings which ANiC is hosting

Our ANiC staff and bishops are hosting the Anglican Church in North America (ACNA) House of Bishops and Provincial Council meetings in Toronto, December 9-12. Please pray for ANiC staff members who are coordinating arrangements and for God’s blessing and leading in the meetings.

TEC elects partnered lesbian as suffragan bishop in Diocese of Los Angeles

In clear defiance of the global Anglican Communion, TEC is pushing on with electing homosexually-active bishops. The Rev Canon Mary Glasspool was elected December 5, one of two suffragan bishops elected by the Diocese of Los Angeles. The diocese's website declares, "Glasspool is... the first openly partnered lesbian to be elected a bishop in the Episcopal Church".

The election still requires consent from the majority of standing committees of TEC's other dioceses. Diocesan bishop, Jon Bruno is quoted on the diocese website as saying, "To not consent in this country out of fear of the reaction elsewhere in the Anglican Communion is to capitulate to titular heads." The ordination is slated for May 15.

The Archbishop of Canterbury responded to the news, calling again for "gracious restraint". His statement said, "The election... raises very serious questions not just for the Episcopal Church and its place in the Anglican Communion, but for the Communion as a whole. The process of selection however is only part complete. The election has to be confirmed, or could be rejected... That decision will have very important implications." However, Dr Kendall Harmon reminds us that Dr Williams issued rather similar statement about Bishop Gene Robinson's election. The Associate Press quotes Dr Harmon saying, "This decision represents an intransigent embrace of a pattern of life Christians throughout history and the world have rejected as against biblical teaching."

The recently established Inter-Anglican Standing Commission on Unity Faith and Order issued a communiqué on December 8 which included a comment on the election of Canon Glasspool. The 21-member international panel, "...expressed the fervent hope that 'gracious restraint' would be exercised by The Episcopal Church in this instance."

Archbishop Peter Jensen (Diocese of Sydney) declared, "Confirmation of this election will make clear beyond any doubt whatsoever that the TEC leadership has chosen to walk in a way which is contrary to scripture and... the expressed will of the majority of the Anglican Communion. Further, it confirms the rightness of... establishing the Fellowship of Confessing Anglicans (FCA)... It is all the more urgent that those who share the aims of the FCA should associate themselves with the movement and express their disapproval of actions which are contrary to scripture and contrary to historic Anglicanism. Further, this gives the Archbishop of Canterbury every reason to act decisively and dissociate from the Episcopal Church and to recognise the Anglican Church of North America.”

In his commentary, Dr Albert Mohler said, “The real question that confronts the Anglican Communion is whether their churches will bless homosexuality. Liberals see this as the necessary liberation of oppressed human beings from prejudice. Conservatives see the blessing of homosexuality as a direct rejection of Scripture, a violation of Christian tradition, and an act of rebellion against God... A call for "gracious restraint" is no leadership at all.”

The Evangelical Fellowship in the Church in Wales issued a statement saying, “... We believe that the election of Mary Glasspool indicates a willingness in the diocese of Los Angeles to break those bonds of affection, and that the confirmation of this election, should it happen, will indicate the willingness of The Episcopal Church as a whole to take actions ‘contrary to the mind of the Communion’. Those who have left The Episcopal Church over recent years have, by contrast, shown their readiness to respect the mind of the Communion. Such events in the United States have shown with increasing clarity which groups do and which do not represent the witness of authentic Anglicanism in that country.”

In distancing themselves from the election, TEC’s Communion Partners Clergy Steering Committee stated, “With the election of a non-celibate lesbian priest as Bishop Suffragan, the Diocese of Los Angeles has demonstrated its belief that membership in an international communion of churches is less important than unilaterally proceeding with an agenda of sexual liberation... Where restraint has been respectfully requested by the leadership of the Communion, this action by the Diocese of Los Angeles is provocative, defiant and uncharitable.”

Listening Process desensitizes, reduces resistance

VirtueOnline proposes that the Anglican Communion “listening process” is less about “listening” and more about promoting greater acceptance of homosexual behaviour within the global Anglican Church through systematically desensitizing and breaking down resistance. Based on an established psychological technique, “The process is designed to first generate sympathy then empathy and finally acceptance.”

Paradoxically, a liberal US “think tank”, formerly led by the ultra-liberal Rev Katherine Ragsdale, is alleging that the African Churches’ opposition to homosexual behaviour has been generated by manipulative North American conservative interests. The report, which downplays the role of Islam, charges that western conservatives are using African churches “as a proxy force in their U.S. culture war” and that African homosexuals have become “collateral damage”. It recommends revisionists build relationships with the next generation of African church leaders, “educating” and “enlightening” them.

The suffering church

China – The Associated Press reports on the systematic abuse of pastors and Christians in China by the government, with church leaders thrown into prison or labour camps simply for meeting as a church. The report states, “Chinese law allows police to sentence people to up to three years in “education through labor” camps without any trial....”

News from around the Communion

Zimbabwe – Conflict continues between supporters of a rogue bishop – former Bishop of Harare Tolbert Kunonga – and those loyal to the Province of Central Africa. Kunonga, who was ousted from the Province several years ago is a close supporter of the country’s dictatorial president Robert Mugabe. The Voice of America News reports that clashes occurred last weekend over which faction retains use of church properties in the diocese.

Uganda – Bloomberg reports that the government of Uganda will redraft proposed legislation governing homosexual behaviour to drop the harshest penalties – life imprisonment and the death penalty – in order to gain support from national religious leaders. The revised bill is expected to be introduced before the end of the month. The Anglican Church in Uganda and Archbishop Henry Orombi has experienced severe pressure from international activities due to this legislation.

Cuba – The Anglican Journal reports that a new Bishop of Cuba will be appointed in January by a triumvirate of TEC’s Presiding Bishop Katherine Jefferts Shori, ACoC’s Archbishop Fred Hiltz and the acting primate of the West Indies Archbishop Errol Brooks. Two diocesan special electoral synods failed to elect a bishop. The Journal reports that “The Cuban diocese has not elected its diocesan bishop for more than 20 years because of internal divisions.”

About Saint Nicholas

A National Post article on St Nicholas, the fourth century Bishop of Myra whose reputation morphed into Santa Claus, reminds us, “Nicholas was not martyred, although he was persecuted and imprisoned for his Christian faith. In this way, it is Nicholas’ life, rather than his death, that informs his legacy... Nicholas demonstrated how to live. A wealthy man, he decided to make kindness his currency.”

The Rev Ed Hird (Anglican Coalition in Canada,) writing for his community paper, also recalls the legacy of St Nicholas. He says, “During [Nicholas’] time, many church buildings were destroyed, bibles were burnt, and priests were murdered. As a result of his faithful suffering, Nicholas ended up being made Saint, the Patron Saint of sailors, Russia, and children. His symbol became 3 bags of gold, the dowry he was supposed to have given to three girls to save them from embarrassment. That, of course, is the origin of Santa bringing presents at Christmas.”

Made in God's image, marred by sin

Euthanasia – The Montreal Gazette reports that the Quebec Liberal government – goaded by the Parti Québécois is beginning a public debate on euthanasia.

The Daily Mail reports that the architect of Holland's legalization of euthanasia has admitted that “...medical care for the terminally-ill had declined since the law came into effect”. This revelation comes in a recently published book by Dr Anne-Marie The who demonstrates that “...palliative care was so inadequate in Holland that patients 'often ask for euthanasia out of fear' of dying in agony because care and pain relief is so poor.” The book also alleges that “The pro-euthanasia campaigners set out to smash the hospice movement. People can no longer get palliative care when they need it - they just get an injection.”

Divorce – A study released by the Vanier Institute entitled Divorce: Facts, Causes and Consequences shows divorce rates declined in Canada after peaking in 1987, and levelled off in the late 1990s. Couples marrying today have a 38 per cent probability of divorce. However, the study found a correlation between religious commitment and marital happiness. In summarizing the study, Canadian Christianity reports that the factors identified as contributing to divorce included: “...liberalized divorce laws; the decline of religious belief leading to the "desacralization" of marriage; and individualism's emphasis on personal choice, happiness and rights rather than duties”. The study also found that children of divorce “...are more likely to suffer from emotional disorders such as anxiety or depression; to exhibit behaviour problems; to become young offenders; to do less well in school; and to experience more relationship problems”.

Marriage and family values – The Interim reports on a newly released book, Fearful Symmetry: The Fall and Rise of Canada's Founding Values, by Brian Lee Crowley which “...persuasively argues that the future prosperity of Canada depends on a revival of marriage and the family. For Crowley, this is a new understanding. Until last year, he was living in a casual, common-law relationship. It was only during a recent stint as the Clifford Clark Visiting Economist at the federal Department of Finance that he finally came to realize that common-law relationships, single-parenthood and rampant marital breakdown are jeopardizing the economic and social well-being of Canadians."

In the preface, Crowley says that, "I quickly began to realize that I couldn't think about marriage and family on a grand scale without also thinking about marriage and family for myself and the critical things I had to say about the decisions Canadians had made in this regard over the past few decades applied just as much to me as to anyone else. I asked Shelley to marry me in February 2008 and we are about to celebrate our first anniversary as this book is being prepared for the printer. My only regret is that it took me so long to get around to it; my great joy is that Shelley would have me in spite of everything."

Human trafficking - By a vote of 239-46 the House of Commons passed Bill C-268, a private members bill which provides a minimum five-year sentence for traffickers of children. Most Bloc Quebecois MPs and three NDP MPs voted against the stricter penalties for child traffickers. Some MPs, including Liberal leader Michael Ignatieff, abstained. Read the story in The Interim.

Abortion – Dr Albert Mohler discusses a New York magazine article that admits (regretfully) that a growing majority of Americans oppose abortion. The writer even goes so far as to say that the current generation, "is the most pro-life to come along since the generation born during the Great Depression."

LifeSiteNews reports that today there are 713 abortion clinics in the US, compared to 2200 in 1991. Operation Rescue has coordinated a campaign of prayer and pursuing legal means to get these clinics shut down. The Operation Rescue website says, "As public opinion shifts toward the pro-life position and as access to abortion services decreases, women are increasingly rejecting abortion in favor of life for their babies."

Pornography – Citizens for Community Values and the Family Research Council have released a study supporting the view that pornography distorts relationships, undermines marriage and family life, and erodes values. In addition to having a higher tolerance for other forms of sexual immorality – including rape, aggression and promiscuity – men exposed regularly to pornography become less emotionally attached to their wives.

And now a word from our sponsor

The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad; the desert shall rejoice and blossom like the crocus; it shall blossom abundantly and rejoice with joy and singing. The glory of Lebanon shall be given to it, the majesty of Carmel and Sharon. They shall see the glory of the Lord, the majesty of our God.

Strengthen the weak hands, and make firm the feeble knees. Say to those who have an anxious heart, "Be strong; fear not! Behold, your God will come with vengeance, with the recompense of God. He will come and save you."

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf unstopped; then shall the lame man leap like a deer, and the tongue of the mute sing for joy. For waters break forth in the wilderness, and streams in the desert the burning sand shall become a pool, and the thirsty ground springs of water; in the haunt of jackals, where they lie down, the grass shall become reeds and rushes.

And a highway shall be there, and it shall be called the Way of Holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it. It shall belong to those who walk on the way; even if they are fools, they shall not go astray. No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast come up on it; they shall not be found there, but the redeemed shall walk there.

And the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with singing; everlasting joy shall be upon their heads; they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.
